Japan, Beware of Bonfires
20-Cent Candy—Where?
Push Big Business

— By Arthur Brisbane —

Copyright, 1921.

May we always remain at peace with Japan, as good competitors, good neighbors, good friends. But strange things happen and those in authority should keep in mind what Captain Joseph Medill Patterson, of Chicago, said yesterday, on the eve of his departure for Europe. Patterson went into the National Guard service as a private, went to Mexico, went to Camp Mills, went to Europe, fought in five first class battles and knows that the fewer wars the better. Says he:

"Seventy per cent of Japan is inflammable. Scores of millions live in houses of straw and wood with paper partitions. A fire started doesn't stop.

"If Japan attacks us, it will be by flying machine. But the Japanese are the people that have the most to fear from flying machine war.

"Our machines flying over Japan and dropping incendiary bombs would set fire to the whole place.

"We own the Island of Guam, correctly described as a dagger aimed at the heart of Japan.

"With them prepared and fortified as a base of attack and supplies it would be easy, in the most friendly way to force the Japanese realize that any move against us anywhere would be followed by a very big Japanese loss.

"Our ships would start toward the Japanese coast filled full with flying machines.

"Those machines are sent up from the hull assembled on deck, one at a time and swiftly. And, one at a time, they would be crashed up loaded with straw and inflammables and sent flying toward the Japanese land of tinder houses.

"The way to discourage war is to make your opponent know that it would not pay. If the Japanese can be made to realize that men living in straw houses should not start war fire, that would help."

Candy manufacturers in convention at Atlantic City lament. They say they are paying three times as much for twenty-cent manufactured candy. The public children especially, would like to know where candy can be bought, made of sugar at twenty cents a pound.

If wholesale manufacturers sell at that price, the public ought to know it. The great difficulty in this country is the high cost of distribution. The consumer pays two, three and four dollars, where the producer gets one dollar. It ought not to cost as much to wrap a thing up as it costs to make it.

Mr. Hoover says foreign governments discriminate against our products. Americans should do likewise. Mr. Hoover calls it "a tendency toward militant exploitation and domination of commerce, of which the whole world must take notice."

European business men operate through their various governments as national units.

We need to fight big business in this country. That was always so. We should have PUBLICITY, ENTORTION, big or little, and ENCOURAGED BIGNESS, which means cheapness when properly managed.

The British government is a great business concern protecting and pushing every British business man. So it is with the French, German and other governments, and so it ought to be with us.

The United States government should encourage big business. It should be at the head of big business itself, marking out a path through the jungle of foreign trade.

Also the government should put in jail and not merely fine business men that, through extortion and combination, kill the goose of American prosperity. The national motto should be: "Big business encouraged—big stealings stopped."

According to Hoover — who ought to know—Europe systematically opposes American business. And at the same time this country is lending to Europe $500,000,000 a year, more than a million and a half dollars for every business day.

NEW OUTBREAK IN BELFAST

DARWIN CONQUERS YANKEE

Boston Golfer Carries Match to 19th Hole—Americans All Eliminated

Hoylake, England, May 26—Frederick J. Wright of Boston, lone survivor of the American contingent that entered the British amateur golf championships, was put out of running in the sixth round today by Bernard Darwin of Woking at the nineteenth hole.

The last hope of the Yankees went down to defeat during the afternoon round when Wright, who came within four holes of winning the championship last year, lost to Darwin after a hard fought battle. Four holes were played in the afternoon, the two players each winning two holes. Wright won the fifth and seventh holes, while Darwin captured the sixth and eighth.

Darwin, playing his usual steady game, was always one stroke ahead of Wright, who was unable to overcome the handicap. Darwin won the match on the nineteenth hole, when Wright overplayed in the attempt to get a three.

SISTERS DIE IN SUICIDE PACT

Chicago, May 26—A suicide pact was carried out by two sisters, who resided here. The bodies of Miss Annie Hoffman, forty-five, and Miss Margaret Mae, forty-three, were found on the kitchen floor in their apartment.

Despondency, but we can't stand it any longer was the note of a suicide note left by the sisters, who, it is said, had been suffering with chronic nervous ailments and was despondent.

The bodies were found by a lodger who came to the room in the house to have counted in the past.

Wireless and Plane Save Life

By International News Service.

Norfolk, Va., May 26—Wireless telegraph and the airplane saved the life of W. H. Midgett, an engineman on a Coast Guard lifeboat at Manteo, N. C., after he had been overcome by gasoline fumes.

There was no physician at Manteo. A wireless message was sent out asking for a navy surgeon.

Lieutenant C. L. Hagnes of the Hampton Roads naval base volunteered and made the trip to Manteo by airplane in 1:00 hours, reaching there just in time.

Midgett was reported recovering today.

APPEAL HOLDS UP PONZI TRIAL

Swindler Is Taken to State Court and Case Is Delayed

Charles Ponzi today appealed from the decision of Federal Judge Clarence Hale, who yesterday denied Ponzi a writ of habeas corpus in which it was sought to prevent the ex-swindler from being taken into Suffolk Superior criminal court to stand trial.

Proceedings in the Suffolk court were stayed by the absence of counsel for the defense, William H. Lewis and Daniel H. Coakley. There seemed to be some doubt in that he would be on trial promptly, in view of his appeal.

Judge Hale, before whom the argument on the appeal will be made, announced he would hear it later.

Ponzi is serving a five-year term as a United States prisoner in Plymouth jail. He was taken before Judge Pessenden in Suffolk court early.

His wife came in shortly afterward. She seemed depressed by yesterday's decision by Judge Hale, and burst out crying after she had kissed her husband.

In the event that the appeal was granted, it was pointed out, it would mean that a bail bond of $25,000 would have the financier out of the custody of Judge Pessenden again.

Dorchester Tenant Weeps as He Tells of Home Owner Removing Part of Roof

Officials of the Renting and Housing Commission, the Board of Health and the Building Commission are investigating today the charge made by Morris Reichman, who lives on the upper floor of the three-story house at No. 101 Elmo street, Dorchester, that his landlord, Thomas Aroff, has removed a portion of the roof.

The Reichman family was driven out he said, and hundreds of dollars' worth of furniture ruined.

Reichman appeared at the offices of the Renting and Housing Commission today, weeping bitterly, to tell his story.

He told Herbert A. Mills, director of the commission, that without warning workmen appeared in his home yesterday and began tearing off a part of the roof.

It was charged that in spite of the protests made by Mrs. Reichman, the work went on until the whole room

CROWLEY TO LET SPOONERS KISS

"Love and let love" is the latest suggestion of Michael H. Crowley, police superintendent.

Inspired by the actions of Miss Clara Burnside, policewoman of Indianapolis who arrests spooning couples, Superintendent Crowley says: "Boston policemen are too busy to stop automobile spooning here. What's a little harmless loving, anyway? There's no law broken, even if a dashing young driver does hold a pretty girl's hand and once in a while steals a kiss. Sometimes you cannot blame him."

The superintendent, however, says that he will be no different matter if the spooners get so thick as to block traffic or become disorderly.

"If we arrested every couple that spooned," he added, "we would soon block traffic bringing them to the station houses."

21 ORDAINED BY CARDINAL O'CONNELL

Twenty-one young men were ordained to the priesthood in Holy Cross Cathedral today by Cardinal O'Connell, Monsignor Peterson of Brighton Seminary, of which the new priests are graduates, and twenty-eight priests assisted the Cardinal in the ceremonies. Could MacGilvray Deal Himself These Wounds?

TWO SHOTS ENTERED IS BREAST CLOSE TO RIGHT NIPPLE CAUSING HEAVY HEMORRHAGE IN BACK, WHICH BEHIND DOUBT FINALLY CAUSED DEATH THERE IS A DIFFERENCE OF AN ANGLE OF 30 DEGREES IN THE LINE OF PENETRATION WHICH SHOWS THAT IN THE INTERVAL BETWEEN FIRST AND SECOND SHOT THE BODY PITCHED FORWARD OR BACKWARD ENOUGH TO CAUSE THE CHANGED ANGLE OF PENETRATION
THE LAST TWO SHOTS ENTERED UNDER CHIN SHATTERING THE BONE AND COMING OUT RIGHT CHEEK.

The absorbing question of murder or suicide in the death of Paton C. MacGilvray is presented vividly in this diagram of his wounds, prepared from the report of the Madison, Wis., pathologists who examined the body there. Did MacGilvray fire into himself four bullets, the shock of any one of which might be expected to stop voluntary action? He did, say Boston authorities. He did not, say his father, friends and the Wisconsin experts. And, what may be most significant of all, did MacGilvray, a right-handed man, shoot himself under the left side of his chin? The angle of penetration is considered of vital importance. The question remains, did he or did he not?

Judges Give Remedy for Selfishness in Home

New York, May 26.—Two magistrates, a man and a woman, laid down a number of rules to eliminate the devastating influence of selfishness in married life, agreeing that half their cases of marital difficulties take their rise from a lack of domestic "fifty-fifty."

The magistrates outlined their remedies as follows:

A WOMAN'S REMEDY.

Magistrate Jean Norris, the first woman magistrate of New York city:

1—That a wife get her husband his meals. Done with deliberateness affords more peace.

2—That husband spend dry the dishes while wife cuts at least one evening a week and should allow husband to rest at home other evenings.

3—That husband pay rent, grocery and butcher bills before six days herself out and refurnishes per home.

4—That especially mothers-in-law should not visit the home on Sunday.

FOR SELFISH HUSBAND.

Magistrate John Koonandaler

one of a combination of the following:

1—To prepare the breakfast every morning.

2—To wash the dishes in the evening.

3—To take care of the children one night a week.

4—To take one evening out a week, leaving the family all every Sunday in the morning and in the afternoon.

5—To deposit a savings bank account.

6—To refrain from asking his wife to go out on the contrary, wait to herself.

7—To kiss every day, at least, the promise he made his wife that he would love, honor and cherish him with her.

Since that time shooting competitions have been held and the employes of the bank have become experts in the handling of small arms.

WORKING HARD ON PEACE

Washington, May 26.—Further progress on redrafting the peace resolution was made by Republican members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

The new resolution will not be finished and ready for presentation to the full committee for several days, Chairman Porter indicated after the conference.

The majority members of the committee, who reflutely decided to substitute a simple declaration of peace for the provision of the Knox resolution passed by the Senate repealing the declaration of war, discussed new proposed changes in the phraseology of the sections of the original resolution designed to protect American rights and property in the peace settlement.

Another conference of the Republicans on the committee is being held today. An effort will be made to complete the work of redrafting the measure in time for the Democrats of the committee to go over it late this week.

"Ah! that Tomato Sauce!"

HEINZ OVEN BAKED BEANS with Tomato Sauce

Yes, you detect it at once—that delicious flavor and tang of Heinz famous Tomato Sauce. It is made of choice, fresh, sun-ripened tomatoes, perfectly spiced and seasoned and used exclusively in the spotless Heinz kitchens.

But the supreme goodness of Heinz Baked Beans is the blending of this distinctive taste with the real bean flavor that oven baking gives.

The Heinz method of actually baking in dry heat ovens retains the food value of beans as well as the flavor. These things mean food economy.

Heinz Oven Baked Beans are all ready to eat—hot or cold.

You, too, will get Enthusiastic

If the little glooms of household drudgery have made you blue—get a MASCO Mop and see them vanish.

No method of cleaning floors has ever been invented that equals the MASCO for quick, easy, thorough results. How come? Because the MASCO is just a bundle of big soft absorbent yarn that drinks up water like sand soaks up rain.

Once over with a MASCO equals twice over with any other mop. It doesn't push the water around. It absorbs it in a jiffy and it wrings out just as easily as it soaks up. No twisting, straining or hard squeezing. No grinding dirt into your hands.

The MASCO in the eight ounce size is just right for housewives. It is light in weight, the strings are short. It finds the corners. It doesn't flop or swish. It cuts work in two. For the big job there is a big MASCO.

Wherever mops are sold you will find the MASCO. If you don't see it ask for it. You will know it by its wrapper and its trademark. For the 8 oz. MASCO they ask 45c, 60c for the 12 oz. 75c for the 16 oz.

The Range That Really Saves

There are two separate ovens—one for coal and one for gas. Both ovens may be used at one time ... in addition to the two baking ovens, there is a gas broiler oven. ... and connections at the top, for NINE large utensils. You can do all of your cooking at one time. You can do it better—with less waste and less work. You have coal for Winter, to keep the kitchen warm and comfortable; and gas for Summer, to keep the kitchen cool.

The illustration below shows the wonderful pearl grey porcelain enamel finish ... and attractive. ... you can clean your range instantly. ... It banishes the old time task of blacking the range. You owe it to yourself to enjoy the comfort and convenience of the Gold Medal Glenwood range.

WOMAN GOD CHANGED

A Romance, Proving That One Who Sins May Come Back

The Crime Proved

Are You Human?

A baby is a baby. Don't they appeal to you? Doesn't your heart go out to them, to cuddle them close to you, to shield them from harm? Doesn't it make you feel human? Before a man you love dies, you will summon up your reach out in all your strength to rid them. In woman there's no flower so beautiful. In illness there's no night so terrible.

Save them then. Use every precaution. Take no chance.

Why a baby is a baby, as mothers will remember it, just a baby, just a child or baby, don't let it have colic and don't try some remedy that you may have used for your own use.

Remember Castoria was made especially for babies' ills and you can use it with perfect safety. Any doctor will tell you. Keep it in the house.

MRS. J. F. KERNAN and her pet monkey. The picture was taken at the United Hunts meet held at Belmont Terminal the other day. Society turned out in full force with and without its animal pets. "Jimmy," Mrs. Kernan's monk, looks like he's enjoying himself. (Wide World Photo)

OFF TO SEEK FOR ROOSEVELT'S RIVER OF DOUBT. Here is the dangerous route of the little band of American adventurers who will leave New York next Wednesday bound for Antofagasta, Chile, the first step on an exploring expedition planned to discover and trace if possible the famous stream found by "Teddy" on his expedition to South American wilds. The expedition will be known as the Mulford Biological Exploration, and Prof. H. H. Rusby, of Columbia University, will be in charge.

Here is Governor Cox presenting to the director of the delivery forces of the Boston American the quill pen the State's executive used to sign the bill making it lawful for boys of school age to sell papers between six in the morning and eight at night, exclusive of school hours. Mr. Maloney was largely instrumental in obtaining the passage of the bill.

SINN FEIN OPPONENT. He's Dr. Ashe, well known physician of Dublin, and one of the staunchest foes of Sinn Fein in the Home Rule elections. Even the people who disagree with him most heartily like him, and he has an enormous practice in his home city.

MODEL OF A BATTLESHIP and its schoolboy maker. Robert Dockett, 13 years old, of No. 14 Northfield street, Roxbury, and a pupil at the Dwight School, has constructed a replica of the U. S. S. Trembling Arms

"Let me!" said Maroneck. Fern got out awkwardly, for he was hampered and Maroneck followed suit. The weeks Maroneck wagged the wheel from side to side, then edged it slowly forward another inch. Then, when he had cleared and recovered control of his senses, he climbed pantingly into the seat and opened the throttle out of danger. "Will you ride the rest of the way with me?" he asked. "or would you rather walk?"

"I'll just get me hat," said Fern. "I don't mind walking."

Peter Santeen walked, his arms, which he held rigidly, folded across the steering wheel. He would have said whether he had or not, but he was in a mood to scorn Fern, brush it far from him, and reproach him. Manners did not care what the said. "If you're a good sport, you'll come back and drive with me. It's another 15 miles to Clifton. I'm in the car myself because I'm tired and want to avoid the fatigue and perhaps speed up a little. I'm not a bad driver, and I'm not a bad fellow. Come with me and we'll have a drink together."

Fern stood irresolute. He was tired, and the invitation to be driven was tempting. Perhaps Maroneck was not a bad fellow. He would be company, anyhow. He would be a witness that Fern had refused to take a drink

New York, May 26.—Samuel Untermyer, chief counsel to the Lockwood legislative committee, which is investigating the tiling trade, told the committee he had evidence to show combination between contractors and union officials in this field whose object was the control of the business not only in this country but in Canada and China.

Mr. Untermyer read letters showing that contractors were forced into the combine under the threat of restricting their business.

Fines totaling $1,150 were imposed on master tilers upon conviction, including contractors who pleaded guilty to charges of violation of the Donnelly anti-trust law.

Let Women Think More Deeply on Disarmament

Hudson Maxim, the well-known inventor of firearms, was invited to address a mass meeting of the Massachusetts Women's Division of the Pro-League Independence in Boston on May 22. Mr. Maxim was invited to address this meeting because he has publicly advocated disarmament, but when it was discovered that he did not believe in disarmament, unless the other nations agreed to disarm step by step with the United States, the invitation to speak was withdrawn.

This is a poor exhibition by those who are undertaking to instruct the new voter. There are always two sides to a question, and those who were willing to give the voters a chance to exercise their judgment fairly would not attempt to deny to them the opportunity of hearing both sides. They would even invite to address them those who do not believe in disarmament under any circumstances. But what must be thought of women who not only refuse to permit their fellowwomen to hear the argument against disarmament, but also try to prevent them from hearing the argument in favor of disarmament under proper safeguards?

Those who are more interested in stopping wars than in making the United States a helpless victim of wars, will beware of such organizations as the Massachusetts Women's Division of the Pro-League Independence, if their action concerning Mr. Maxim is typical of their attitude on the general question of disarmament.

Anyone who has intelligence and the will to exercise it knows that the way to get disarmament in the world is to have the nation most capable of creating and maintaining a greater armament than any other nation in the world declare in such a way as to make everybody believe it, because we do mean it, that if the other nations don't disarm, we will arm until the armament of the other nations looks puny.

Now the nation which stands in the way of disarmament today is Great Britain. She is determined, if she can, to control the sea, and she is trying to get the United States to agree to it by a tremendous propaganda in this country to the effect that the control of the sea is vital to our life. It is a false argument. The control of the sea is no more vital to the life of Great Britain than the control of the continent of Europe is to Germany or to France, or to any of the continental powers.

Let the women think this over, and consider whether the United States can't do two things, by stopping the talk of separate disarmament and serving a stern warning on Great Britain that if she does not disarm, we will arm until we have made her armament relatively insignificant. Will not this warning protect the United States from the terrible consequences of complete defenselessness, and will it not also serve to hasten the day of disarmament?

In passing, let us call attention to the statement of one of the leading public men of New Zealand, contained in a recent cable:

I would be glad to see a conference about disarmament, but I do not believe that the conference would achieve much at present. When the statesmen of the British Empire meet in London in June, they may discuss alliances, treaties and armaments. But they will set down to hard tacks on the subject of imperial defense. We must be ready to fight. Then, being ready to fight, we can use our influence without fear or prejudice in the direction of peace.

This is the spirit with which those who would make the world disarm have to deal. There is only one way of meeting it.

A Foolish Law

Criminals Can Read

Copyright, 1921, by Star Co.

The most stupid and unworthy feature of our immigration laws is the literacy test. It admits a professional forger, because he can write his name—and the names of others—it repeatedly excludes entire families, because the father, coming here to take up and develop unused farm lands in the West, and help feed the world, is illiterate.

Three Italian women, sisters, came together. Two could read, the third had done all the work for the other two while they went to school. She, a devoted woman, the sort that every country needs, was separated from her two sisters and sent back. Is that worthy of a country calling itself civilized?

Abraham Lincoln's mother was an illiterate woman. Would it have been wise to shut her out?

A deep affection in the heart of President Harding is for his sister, a noble woman, who has devoted her life to teaching children in public schools.

She can tell him that no public school children are more promising than those of illiterate foreign parents. They lack book knowledge, but they have the AMBITION to cross the great ocean and bring their children to the land of opportunity.

AMBITION is what this country needs in its population. Reading and writing our public schools will supply. And what more asinine than a literacy test "to keep out criminals." Criminals, drunken Russian grand dukes and fortune hunting sponges from England and other countries can all READ.

Fighting by Proxy

Suggestion For Warring Nations to Pick Carpentier and Dempsey as Their Champions

Copyright, 1921, by Star Company.

In olden times disputes between Kings (who in those days were the State; the people paid the score, but had nothing at all to say) were sometimes settled through "trial by combat."

Each King chose a husky knight, enclosed him in boiler-plate, put a small telegraph pole in his doughty grasp, set him on a caparisoned steed and sent him tilting at the adversary.

The King whose knight knocked the other knight's block off won the war, and the subjects of the loser paid the assessed indemnity, but escaped a long pension list.

It was a decided improvement on modern war—cheaper, less bloody, more quickly settled, better sport while it lasted, and not messed up by prolonged subsequent strivings for strangleholds in peace.

It's a pity that the coming meeting between Carpentier and Dempsey couldn't be used in this way.

If any two of the gamecock new nations in Europe, now so eager for gore, could be persuaded to pick these nifty pugilists as champions and sign articles to abide the result, it would give zest to the combat, swell the gate receipts, insure better and swifter fighting than is customary in the trenches, and there'd be fewer bills to pay.

Fighting by proxy!

Surely that's a mediæval custom worthy of revival in this "let George do it" age!

The Room Beneath the Rafters

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

SOMETIMES when I have dropped to sleep,
Draped in a soft, luxurious gloom,
Across my drowsing mind will creep
The memory of another room,
Where resinous knots in roof boards made
A frescoing of light and shade,
And sighing poplars brushed their leaves
Against the humbly sloping eaves.

Again I fancy, in my dreams,
I'm lying in my trundle bed;
I seem to see the bare old beams
And unhewn rafters overhead.
The mud wasp's shrill falsetto hum
I hear again, and see him come
Forth from his dark-walled hanging house,
Dressed in his black and yellow blouse.

There, Summer dawns, in sleep I stirred,
And wove into my fair dream's woof
The chattering of a martin bird,
Or rain-drops pattering on the roof.
Or, half awake, and half in fear,
I saw the spider spinning near
His pretty castle where the fly
Should come to ruin by-and-by.

And there I fashioned from my brain
Youth's shining structures in the air.
I did not wholly build in vain,
For some were lasting, firm and fair.
And I am one who lives to say
My life has held more gold than gray,
And that the splendor of the real
Surpassed my early dream's ideal.

But still I love to wander back
To that old time and that old place;
To tread my way o'er memory's track,
And catch the early morning grace,
In that quaint room beneath the rafter,
That echoed to my childish laughter;
To dream again the dreams that grew
More beautiful as they came true.

ELECTRICITY TRAVELING AROUND EARTH

By Garrett P. Serviss

I have been appointed by my class to write and ask you how long it takes electricity to travel around the world.—Miss Betty Richards, Columbus, O.

If you mean does electricity traveling through open space or through the air, like the electric waves used in wireless telegraphy, the time taken to go around the world on a great circle of the globe, would be but a trifle more than one-eighth of a second.

The velocity of electricity is the same as that of light, viz., about 186,000 miles per second.

Distance in Second

The distance that it would travel in one-eighth of a second is 23,250 miles. But the distance around the earth, taking its mean diameter of 7,918 miles, is 24,875 miles, which is but 1,625 miles more than the distance it actually travels in one-eighth of a second.

It would make up the 1,625 miles in considerably less than a hundredth of a second. But the speed of a current of electricity traveling through a wire or cable is not so great and depends upon various circumstances. It is most retarded in long sweak cables.

Through Cable

The time taken for the current to pass through the Atlantic cable between Newfoundland and Ireland, a distance of about 1,700 miles, is usually of a second, indicating a mean velocity in the cable of only 4,000 miles per second. And the waves used in wireless telegraphy through the air or the ground have not attained to be felt at the receiving end lasting as long as three seconds.
